

You have the right to receive a “Good Faith Estimate” explaining how much your medical care will cost.

Under the law, health care providers need to give patients who do not have insurance an estimate of the bill for medical items and services.

- You have the right to receive a Good Faith Estimate for the total expected cost of any non-emergency services.
- When your appointment is scheduled 3 or more days in advance, make sure your health care provider gives you a Good Faith Estimate in writing at least 1 business day prior to your scheduled medical service. You can also ask your health care provider, and any other provider you choose, for a Good Faith Estimate prior to scheduling.
- If you receive a bill that is at least $400 more than your Good Faith Estimate, you can dispute the bill.
- Make sure to save a copy or picture of your Good Faith Estimate.
